Washington, July 18.—How the National Association of Manufacturers proposed to concentrate its energies if necessary for the re-election of former Speaker Cannon in 1908, was described in one of the first of the "Mullhall letters" brought before the senate lobby committee today. Mullhall confessed lobbyist for the manufacturers, admitted one-third through his stack of correspondence when the committee resumed.

The letter bearing on Cannon was written to Mulhall by Secretary Schedtmann of the manufacturers of August 12, 1908, and declared all energies would be concentrated in Cannon's district "if there is the slightest occasion for it." A letter from Mulhall to Representative Loudenslager, of New Jersey, said the manufacturers had field work out in the campaign in many New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Indiana districts.

Schwedman wrote Mulhall August 18, about the situation in Indiana which he said was "very critical" and ended: "If we have most of the credit will be due to your work. It is some of our political friends who forget it later on I want to take a trip with you into Indiana, for the specific purpose of laying these good deeds over our knees and giving them the kind of spanking they ought to have."

In August a fight in the 11th Wisconsin district where John D. Jenkins was up for re-election was apparently carrying the manufacturers although the National Brewers' Association through its national chairman wrote Mulhall it was

Hines' Name Mentioned.
Edward Hines, the Chicago lumber man, who figured in the Lorimer case came into the hearing again today. Mulhall swore that in a letter to the manufacturers August 27, Hines spoke of a promise to send $1,000 to go "into the right channel" to be used for legitimate purposes" in the Jenkins district. Schwedtmann wrote Mulhall on August 28th.

"I don't consider Teddy nor Taft or Sherman nor Foraker nor the rest of those great men equal to Van Clave, Perry, Kirby and the others who have given freely of their energy and their money to the great cause which is expressed in the principles of the National Manufacturers' Association."

To Call McClave.

Senator Reed questioned Mulhall about Congressman Bartholdt.

"I always understood" Schwedman told Van Cleave looked after Bartholdt and that the brewery interest helped," replied Mulhall. The committee decided to immediately hear S. W. McClave, republican candidate for congress in the sixth new Jersey district here special election is to be held Tuesday.

Mulhall testified yesterday that he had run McClave's campaign against William Hughes in 1905.

TRY TO BREATHE LIFE INTO PHANTOM ISSUES
RECALLIST SPEAKERS DWELL UPON BUGABOO OF RULE BY PUBLIC UTILITY.
AVOID REAL QUESTION

Fail to State Position on Toleration of Social Evil, Enforcement of Liquor Laws and Gambling.

Heroic efforts to breathe life into the phantom issues of public utility domination of the city government and their oppression of the common people, made by the recallist speakers at their meeting held in Armory Hall last evening, and after much fanning by superheated air, a little oratorical mesmerism, and a great deal of auto-suggestion, the ghost was made to walk. Bones were rattled that had lain undisturbed since the old common council passed into oblivion and the faithful were urged to arm and fight with the fantasmagorians of their imaginations for the possession of the unbridled liberties that once had been theirs.

Nichols Absent.
John C. Nichols, the recallist candidate for Mayor, was not able to be present because attending a meeting in Chicago of jobbers handling the supplies sold by his firm. Announcement of this fact was made by Attorney John L. Fisher. Fisher opened his remarks with a reference to the acceptance of Mayor Fathers' challenge to a debate by Mr. Nichols. As a reason why the latter did not consent to debate in the Armory Theater on Friday night he stated that the theater was too small a place to hold the crowd that wished to hear the debate. "Mr. Nichols," he said, "will be only too glad to meet Mayor Fathers."

As was the case at their meeting on the previous evening the editorials in the Gazette and the account of the last evening were used as texts for a good share of the discussion. "The Gazette," said Mr. Fisher, "has the table of the sheep in wolf's clothing misapplied. The wolf is in the other camp. I hope that you will study into this question. The cry that the issue is that of law or lawlessness is a ruse; the issue is a business-like administration by men who will act for the people, not in the interest of corporations. I have had some conversation with Mr. Nichols as to the kind of administration he will give the people of Janesville if elected. He promises a good clean, moral, business-like administration which everyone can be proud of. He will act without fear or favor and every man will be treated equally. We resent the charge that we favor a wide-open town. If Nichols is elected we will have a cleaner, better administration than we ever had under Mayor Fathers."

No Statement.
Mr. Fisher did not state, nor did any of the other recallists present, state their position on toleration of commercialized vice, of gambling, slot machines, the sale of liquor to minors and women, Sunday closing of saloons, and the licensing of saloons within a limited zone.

"For months after the election of Mayor Fathers, matters continued as they had been," said Mr. Fisher, not pausing to explain whether the former Nichols regime was to be commended for its efforts to enforce the laws and safeguard the morals of the community.

"The change came after the committee of fifteen went to the city hall and virtually forced the administration to act. There will be no necessity for a committee of fifteen if Nichols is elected Mayor, because he will conduct a clean city. If the blame for this revolting crime of which our opponents have made so much capital, is to be placed anywhere it must rest on Mayor Fathers because he permitted under his administration the conditions that made it possible.

As to Re-assessment.
"I want to tell you that Nichols had nothing to do in bringing about the re-assessment and cannot in any way be held responsible. I want to ask you what Mayor Fathers has done for the city of Janesville. Has he made any great saving, reduced taxes, been instrumental in bringing new industries and new people to the city? Have you heard of any corporation being docked for failure to provide adequate service? Has the Janesville Electric company been lights to go out? As to the statement of our opponents that the State Tax Commission has abandoned its attempt to collect the charge for re-assessment, the county treasurer tells me that it has not been abandoned, and the Tax Commission says that it never will abandon it. The only saving to which Mayor Fathers' point is saving the expense of an additional election on the water bond issue, and possibly the construction of the approach of the Racine street bridge. The Gazette says our statements are all rant. Any statement that comes from our side, will be characterized as rant."

Maxfield Accepts Responsibility.
Full responsibility for bringing about the re-assessment was confessed by former City Attorney H. L. Maxfield, who did not seem especially proud of his work in this direction. He did not pause, however, to discuss the merits or demerits of this compromise, preferring to dwell upon his part in furthering the purchase by the city of the plant of the Janesville Water company. With more or less detail he told of the attempt of the water company to force water consumers sprinkling laws to install meters, of their attention being called to a decision of the Rate Commission that consumers could not be forced to install meters, of the plan to force the water company to install meters, and finally of the acceptance of the latter of an indeterminate franchise.

"It was said at this time," said Mr. Maxfield, "that the water company had won the suit. Can you believe this in the face of the statement of one of the company that it would cost them $10,000 to comply with the order to install meters and the other orders of the commission as to rates and service, and reduce their dividends to less than seven per cent."

properly submitted. I consulted with Mayor Fathers on this matter and he decided that he should the submission had been a proper one. The Railway Commission also held it was a proper submission as it did in the Racine case. That question as to submission has gone by. If you want to know hard the present administration has worked to buy the waterworks for the city take note of the fact that during the former administration the water company paid out $1,500 for attorney's fees and during the present administration not more than $250.

It was claimed by the speaker that Mayor Fathers and his administration had been guilty of inexcusable fire lays in bringing about the waterworks purchase. He had told Mayor Fathers on his election that he hoped to see him make good, but implied that he had been very much disappointed.

Recall Secretary Talks.
James Smith, secretary of the John C. Nichols personal campaign committee devoted most of his time to reading the statement of the lawyer that appeared in last night's Gazette, but also interjected impromptu comment.

It may be of interest to you to know," he said, "that the reply to the statement was written in the office of the attorneys for the water company and penned by its chief attorney. You have noticed how the corporation men are sweating blood, calling upon their lawyers to save their skins. You know that public utilities the world over are never afraid of dipping their pens deep into your poverty that they may write their dividends.

Ex-Alderman Dulin Heard.
"The city was soured $600 in securing a west approach to the Racine street bridge," said Former Alderman Dulin, who spoke with the very vigor that once characterized him in the Center Avenue improvement with Ex-Alderman Hall. "I had matters so fixed that the approach would not have cost the city a cent more cost than the five cent piece to lay the main outlet sewer because it was laid on the right of way of the Northwestern railroad and I had it done."

"Center avenue had been tied up since the commission government came into power, so has a part of Center street, because of the action of one of the home guards, Mr. Burpee. Why if he has a claim don't they settle it. I am told they intend to oil that street. If they do they can burn it off because there is a good hay crop on it."

Mr. Dulin asserted that in the days of the Common Council the public always knew what was going on because the proceedings were published in full in the papers, whereas now they ask you to call and get their annual report. He did not get to the fact that the meetings are open to press and public, and that monthly reports are issued. The ex-aldorman closed with an exhortation to the faithful to come out and vote. "I have heard it said the more of us will come out. If we can't do anything else we can drown them out."

John Sweeney Has Word.
John Sweeney spoke very briefly. He said: "When I look over this crowd of honest working-men I think of the olden days when I lived in an humble cottage with its roof thatched with straw, and I feel that you think just as much of your rights as those who live in the mansions on the hill. After reading what the opposition has to say I am satisfied that this is nothing but a fight of the corporations against the masses."

Ex-Alderman Ed. Connell was called upon to speak, but his only response was to say that his heart and soul was with them. In their fight he would stand by them to the end, and that they would win if they worked hard.

"At the close of the speech-making steps were taken to perfect ward organizations.

BOYS ARE REWARDED WITH FINE RESULTS
Those Entered in Gazette Corn Contest Have Good Crop Prospects.—Time to Thin Out Stalks.
(By Noyes Raessler.)

Those who have diligently cultivated their corn right from the start have good reason to look over their corn with satisfaction now.

I have found very few boys in the contest who have not gone through their corn five times.

The past two weeks, conditions have been most ideal for the raising of the corn crop, and fields which were planted as late as May 20th, are now shoulder high and tasseling out.

As the recent storm has blown the corn about quite badly it is rather difficult to cultivate in some of the fields. However, the thinning out of surplus stalks must not be overlooked. Any hill that contains over four stalks should be thinned down to four—and in light soil, to three stalks.

Do not pull up the corn now, but cut it off with a knife close to the ground.

At this time, the weeds pull up readily, and should be attended to at once.

Although, the effects of weeds may not appear just now they will do serious damage to the crop before harvest time unless they are removed.

Remember that a corn crop is not made in one day nor one month. The boy who keeps his eye on the corn from planting time till harvest, is the one who will become the leader in his class, and will find that he grows older, the work in the corn field will become a pleasure.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO MISLEAD PUBLIC IS PLAINLY BALKED

City Engineer Kerch Gives Statement that Fourth Avenue Bridge Was Built in Every Detail According to Plans.

One of the charges which has been brought against Mayor Fathers by the recall party was that he failed to secure the construction of a cement railing on the southeasterly wing wall of the Fourth Avenue bridge, which they allege, was provided for in the plans and specifications passed by the old common council. They further claim that Mayor Fathers secured no reduction in the cost of building the bridge in consequence of the alleged omission, and make insinuations which can be easily followed.

In a statement today City Engineer C. V. Kerch says that the plans for the bridge in question were carried out to the letter, and reports, after examining the record, that the plan as adopted "shows no concrete railing at the point and clearly states thereon that the newel post only was required. Mr. Kerch's statement gives dates and can be easily verified at the city clerk's office. It is as follows:

To the Honorable Mayor, City of Janesville, Wisc.

Dear Sir: "In compliance with your request for a statement of the facts in reference to the omission of the balustrade or hand rail on the southeasterly wing wall of the Fourth Avenue bridge in front of the Milwaukee Electric Company's building concerning which certain allegations have been made, I am pleased to inform you that the work was performed in accordance with the plans for the same as approved by the Street Assessment Committee on the 6th day of February, 1911, and as adopted by the Common Council on the 20th day of March, 1911.

"The plan adopted by the old council shows no concrete railing at the point, and clearly states thereon that the newel post only was required and that the balustrade was to be omitted as you will see by reference to the plans as then adopted and now on file in the city clerk's office. Respectfully submitted,
C. V. KERCH,
City Engineer."

SPORT Snap-Shots

Dusty Rhodes, the old Cleveland pitcher and now in the American association, was regarded among his teammates and those who knew him as one of the brainiest twirlers in the big show. A few years ago Rhodes mentioned a situation where he'd rather have a heavy hitter approach the bat than the average batter. "If there were two on and two out," said Dusty, "and Sam Crawford, say, was coming up, I'd pass up Crawford to get a chance at Ty Cobb who would follow him. And if he got a nickel I'd get away with it; if he got Cobb's nerve." Oddly enough this same situation came about a few months later at Detroit. Rhodes was in the box for Cleveland and in the seventh inning with two on and two out Sam Crawford was marching up to bat. Crawford preceded Cobb in the Detroit batting order. Dusty sent Crawford down to first on a pass and Ty's jaw dropped as he marveled. "It was a nifty thing to do," Rhodes had challenged Ty—had dared him to get a hit and the bags all packed. And it got Ty's nifty; he proved an easy out. Most of the onlookers thought the whole affair a nice piece of luck for Dusty and had no idea that he had hoped the whole thing out in advance.

With Jack Johnson completely out of it now there is a splendid opportunity for some young man with the goods to come forward and cop out the heavyweight honors. At present the heavy field doesn't appear to be all cluttered up with promising contenders for Lil Artha's throne and the best stuff before the fight public today doesn't seem to be any too good. Willard the other day had an awful hard time beating Charlie Miller, who is no one in particular, and didn't show anything very startling. Genboat Smith, Rodell, Morris, Moran and Peller, the most promising of the present claimants haven't shown any very hot stuff. Where, oh where, is the husky young man to come forth with the real heavyweight class?

It is told of old Jim Corbett, the dandy of the fight game, that though scientific as he was, he simply couldn't at times control his very hasty 45 h. p. temper. The very opposite of old Bob Fitzsimmons in this, for Fitz was a cool, collected, and coolness in his fight with Charley Mitchell at Jacksonville. Corbett went after Mitchell hammer and tongs and Mitchell made an unpleasant remark to him in the early rounds. Onlookers declared afterwards that if Jim had been able to get his hands on a ball bat or some other cudgel he would have taken joy in rapping Mitchell smartly in the head. And in the final round of the fight Corbett didn't know that Mitchell had crawled to his feet till some one told him. He had walked to his corner thinking the thing was over. Another wallop put the crafty, sharp-tongued Mitchell away for the count.

into the box the opposing batsman are as happy as an auto party stranded thirty miles from home. Christy Mathewson and Eddie Plank, the veteran major league twirlers, will be all in next spring. They have been through for several years, but they won't quit. A glance at the pitching records will convince anyone that the two old boys should have been at the Gettysburg reunion instead of taking chances on a ball field. This season Plank won only thirteen out of fifteen games, while Christy has hobbled in and copped fourteen out of eighteen games.

Rowing Regatta at St. Paul. St. Paul, Minn., July 18.—The annual regatta of the Northwestern International Rowing association, which was originally scheduled to begin on the Mississippi River here today, has been postponed until Friday and Saturday of next week. The boat clubs of Winnipeg, Duluth and a number of other cities are expected to take part.

PLAN BIG FIELD DAY AT TWO PLAY GROUNDS

Directors Will Hold Track Meet on Wednesday of the Coming Week — Jefferson Defeats Webster.

On Wednesday of the coming week the directors at the two play grounds situated at the Jefferson and Webster track meet that promises to develop very keen competition. The contestants will be divided into classes according to their age and numerous athletic events will be staged. It has not been decided whether the directors will have the two groups of children from the respective grounds in competition or not.

The events will consist of the standing, running and broad jumps, chin-up, hundred yard dash and relay race. If the two grounds do not meet in the track meet it is probably that a field day will be arranged for and the entire day be devoted to athletic activities.

On Wednesday night of this week two volley ball teams composed of high school boys representing the two grounds clashed at Webster grounds and the cast sides came through the credit. The scores of the two games were 21 to 12 and 21 to 9. The members of the victorious team were as follows: George Brown, Colton Sayles, Morse Weirick, George Kavalage, Frank Lee, Frank Blodgett and Thomas Sloan. The defeated team was composed of C. Welch, M. Plannigan, G. Cassidy, D. Sullivan, H. Buell and J. Denning. A return game at the Jefferson grounds is being arranged and the two teams will probably clash sometime next week.

Mr. Law, director at the Webster school grounds has arranged for a schedule of volley ball games between the girls and team number 1 composed of Misses J. Yohn, A. Elder, E. Austin, H. Luske and L. Mason. Misses H. Sullivan, H. Clark, S. Curtis, W. Schlicker and E. Ryan, made up the losing team. Team number one defeated their rivals in the first game by a score of 19 to 21 but lost in the second contest by a 21 to 21. In playing the tieoff Wednesday, number ones clearly outlasted their opponents and they won by a 21 to 2 score.

CHALLENGE CUP WON BY ALEX. GALBRAITH

Former Janesville Man Awarded Highest Prize For Draft Horses at Winnipeg Exposition.

Alexander Galbraith, a former Janesville man was the winner of the Free Press Grand Challenge cup for best draft stallion at the recent Winnipeg Industrial Exposition on the highest honor of the kind to be bestowed, his entry being Charnock, a two year old Clydesdale stallion. According to the Winnipeg Free Press "Charnock" was an outstanding winner. He is the type of Clyde which the breeder longs for, dreams of, but seldom sees. He is good, both at the top, and at the ground. A strong short coupled body, a fine shoulder, well muscled loin, and superb head surmount a set of legs which it would be hard to beat, especially as to the ankle and pastern. He moved well and was altogether a horse to fill the eye. He has a rather peculiar marking for a Clyde viz: a long, white splotch on the thigh. No one was surprised when he got the red ribbon.

Second place for Clydesdale stallions four years old also went to Alexander Galbraith with Proud Edward the entry and second prize for two year old Percheron stallions with Hercules.

KENTUCKY STATE MILITIA IN ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Middlesboro, Ky., July 18.—Nearly 2,000 soldiers of the Kentucky National Guard pitched tent here today at the opening of their annual state encampment. The encampment will continue an entire week. One of the most important features will be a battle in the historic Cumberland Gap on the old home trail. Cumberland Gap is noted as one of the main passways between the North and the South and was taken and retaken by both sides during the civil war.

WORLD CRICKET CHAMPION IS SIXTY-FIVE TODAY [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, July 18.—Dr. William G. Grace, known throughout the English-speaking world as the "Grand Old Man of Cricket," received the congratulations of a host of admirers today on the occasion of his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary. "W. G." as he is familiarly called by devotees of the game, is universally conceded to be the greatest cricketer who ever played, in first-class matches he has played no fewer than 125 three-figure innings—125 in England and one in Australia—and in all kinds of cricket he has hit as many as 217 hundreds, a feat which no other cricketer has approached. He has on seven occasions accomplished the double feat of scoring 1,000 runs and taking 100 wickets in one season. At the age of 65 Dr. Grace is still as keenly interested in cricket as he was in the days when he was learning the game in his father's orchard with three dogs to assist in the fielding.

Science or Sense. A London brain specialist says that of two women one will dress from the desire of self-display and the other will be actuated by an esthetic sense. It is to be feared that the distinction between the flashy and the sensible is not confined to one sex, though it may be more noticeable there.

Novel Method of Defense. An English engineer proposes to defend his country in event of war by suspending bombs from balloons, which could be exploded from the ground when approached by a hostile dirigible or aeroplane.

Equality of Strength in Arms. Equality of strength in both arms occurs almost twice as frequently with women as with men, more men than women being stronger in the right arm than in the left.

LEST WE FORGET.

As the time approaches for the casting of the ballot in the recall election on Tuesday next the clouding of the real issues of the campaign on the part of the recall element continues without abatement. Apparently they fear to meet the question face to face and by evasion would befuddle the voters, injecting various side problems irrelevant to the matter at hand, into the case.

If the moral conditions of the city are as represented by the secretary of the recall campaign committee in his communication to the clergy, why have an election next Tuesday?

They are the very conditions for which the signers of the recall petitions were struggling, and if Mayor Fathers has "bowed to their will" why go to the expense of changing him for someone else? The whole thing is upside down. According to this secretary's statement the recall should be from those who are in favor of enforcing the ordinance. It simply shows to what desperate straits the "organization" is forced to resort.

With the right hand they are soliciting votes from those in favor of a wide open town and with the left are reaching for any votes that are attainable through gross misrepresentation. Could any person after looking over the signatures on the recall petitions, conceive of anything more anomalous than the representatives of those signers soliciting votes from the clergy?

One of the most striking examples of what is expected if the recall element are successful and a direct refutation of their denials they favor a wide open town, is the fact that one of the retail liquor dealers, whose place of business was outside the zone established, has not disposed of his stock of liquors or cigars, moved his glassware or fixtures, and is even paying rental on his former stand, expecting that if the recallists win he will be able to open up for business again.

Not only that, but he has told friends, confidentially, of course, he will be doing business at the old stand right after the twenty-second. Evidently he is confident that the recallists will win, that the people will be blinded to the real facts in the case, and vote to turn the city over to the old gang that were ousted from office when these same voters decided on the commission form of government and have not lost sight of the plums they failed to gather since leaving office.

This is evidence enough that, published statements to the contrary, the town will be thrown wide open if the element standing for lawlessness wins. Never in the history of the city has Janesville been so free from vice as at the present time. Way back in the days of John Hogan a similar condition may have existed, but then there was an element of graft connected with it, while today, it is simply reform without the graft.

This fight is not being made by the majority of the retail liquor dealers in their own behalf. In fact a goodly proportion of the holders of licenses under present conditions are well satisfied with the regulations. It is a contest brought on by an element seeking power and also backing the wishes of the liquor dealers who cater to the lower element, who made their profits off their wine rooms and keeping their places open after hours and Sundays. To the men whose business has been hurt by the closing of disorderly houses. By the men who catered to young boys and girls, enticing the former with dice games and slot machines and the latter with liquor. Their business has been hurt and they are the ones shouting for a change in administration.

Mis-statements, mis-quoting facts, are frequent in campaigns, when used for special purposes to delude the voter, but in the present contest there can be no mistaking the real issue, no matter in what sort of a sugar-coated pill it is presented by the recallists. Law or lawlessness is the only question to be voted upon next Tuesday. It is up to the voters to choose and it is to be hoped every man interested in the welfare of the city will register his opinion at the polls.

A well known author has returned to this country from Europe with ninety trunks. But why should he carry his rejected manuscript about with him?

Possibly Secretary Bryan would rather talk about the Mexican situation on the lecture platform than tackle it in his Washington office.

The Toledo man who shot a woman three times in the head and himself once in the hat must believe in a double standard of morality.

Then again, it may be that Secretary Bryan is only getting ready to call a general strike of peerless leaders.

"Give me freedom or kill me," cried Mrs. Pankhurst. Yet many of us have never thought for a minute that Patrick Henry was crazy.

As an author, Ambassador Page probably will not be as much interested in the royalties he meets as those he receives.

The truly wise man doesn't necessarily refrain from sprinkling his lawn just because the weather forecast says "fair."

The most painful part of assimilating would be over by now if our grandfathers had only kept Mexico when they had it.

Colonel Mulhall's imperative engagements must annoy him dreadfully, with ice-men's strikes blooming all around.

If Europe had a baseball league instead of a Balkan league perhaps it wouldn't have so much trouble.

Another slight addition to the long list of things that shouldn't worry us is Anna Held's $50.00 stockings.

It is also noticeable that coroners' autopsies are frequently accompanied by moral post-mortems.

A Pennsylvania man boasts of having killed 7,000 snakes. Proprietor of a jag cure?

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Rushing Work: Over fifty men are being employed in tearing down the north half of the upper railroad bridge preparatory to the construction of the five piers from the railings to the top of the structure where the girders will be laid. The company has their hundred ton derrick at work as fast as the old girders are unriveted they are hoisted on flat cars. It is expected that the iron workers will finish ripping the old span work down by this week. The Cleary-White Construction company has twenty men working building the cement forms and the piers will be extended up from the first step next week.

were an automobile, a trip to Europe and a house and lot of our own. We knew that we could never have these things while paying for the encyclopedia for every time we saved up $1.50, the shiny gentleman touched me quickly and gently on the elbow and held up the yellow slip.

That encyclopedia developed into a mania, an obsession in fact and we hadn't had time to read far enough into it to find out how to take the grass stains out of white duck trousers or whether it was Julius Caesar or A. L. Brainerd who swam the Hellespont. My wife looked in it once to find out how to remove the top from a glass fruit jar and while she was looking it up, the collector called three times for the installments.

Last night was a gala night and we had a little dinner party to celebrate our freedom.

This morning when I got to my office, I found my old friend the shiny gentleman with a set of books written by a man I had never heard of. It was called a "Compendium of Universal Knowledge." My impulse to kick him down stairs was halted by one glance from his baleful eye. He told me he wanted me to buy the books because of my prominence in the community and would make me a special rate so that he could use my name as an advertisement. He fattered my vanity until I thought I was a de luxe edition of John D. Rockefeller. Pierpont Morgan and Woodrow Wilson combined and rolled into one.

He stayed three hours and a half. The office of Pierpont Morgan would have sunk into insignificance by comparison.

Did I fall?

Not a bit.

My last installment on the new set of books is due July 1, 1947.

Better Let the Women Tat.
Tattooing is the least expensive sort of fancy work a woman can do. Many girls admit that they could crochet three balls of cotton while they are tattooing one. Men, it will be easier on your pocketbooks if you let this harmless task go blithely on, for those gay sofa cushions are soon done and then thread and linen must be bought for a new one. For a woman's fingers must be employed.—Kansas Industrialist.

Life of Frances Culver Saved by Dr. E. N. Sartell After She Had Taken Deadly Drug.

Deserted by her lover, whose return she despaired of, Frances Culver residing on South River street, yesterday tried to take her own life through swallowing a deadly drug. Her act was discovered soon afterward and her life was saved by the prompt arrival and treatment administered by Dr. E. N. Sartell. It is said that she has made previous attempts at suicide. The girl's unhappiness and despair has made her morbid and she is scarcely held responsible for her actions in this condition.

PIERS AND LAND FOUND UNDER WATER AT KEGONSA

Janesville property-owners at Lake Kegonsa are somewhat frightened over the high water which has been prevailing about the shores of the lake at Stoughton. It will require water has been continually rising, and at present many piers and in some places even the shore is being washed away.

The cause of this unusual rise was first discovered yesterday to be floating boys at Stoughton. It was some hard work to remove these, because they are jammed in close to the bridges, causing the water in the Yahara river to rise several feet. If the matter is not attended to at once, many cottages may be washed away, as the water was at a high level today.

STATEMENT

In June, 1912, Mr. Bert Van Houter, formerly of the firm of Van Houter & Dalton, came to my office and in the presence of Councilman Cummings asked to be promised a license to conduct a saloon at a location, corner North High and West Bluff streets near the C. M. and St. Paul depot and I told him there was no chance under the Baker law to increase our number of saloons, nor to make any new locations, but told him that he had a good reputation as a saloon keeper and if there was a vacancy or a deficiency in the number of saloons in the present locations, we would be pleased to grant him a license. We told him that we did not like to have "residence" and "near depot" saloons and that we intended to restrict rather than increase the territory in which saloons were to be located. We told him that we thought that about forty saloons could maintain, and comply with decent regulation in their conduct. (We have granted 42 saloon licenses and 3 brewery licenses.) We told him that if he could obtain one of the then present locations, we would willingly make a transfer.

He came to the office a second time to plead for his proposition, but again as before we could give him no assurance.

I will also state that I never at any time, nor under any circumstances, said, agreed or even intimated in any manner whatever that I would grant saloon licenses in a one, two, three order.

DOUGHERTY SUBMITS STATEMENT OF FACT

TRUTH ABOUT FINLEY AND KNIPP LIQUOR LICENSE CASES IS AGAIN GONE OVER.

WAS AFTER LICENSES

Both Offenders Received Same Sort of Treatment Says City Attorney in Regard to Matter Dragged Into Campaign

Inasmuch as the Finley and Knipp license cases have been dragged into the present recall campaign the following statement of the true facts regarding the prosecution and conviction of the two offenders as made by City Attorney W. H. Dougherty, the request of Mayor Fath's personal campaign committee, will be of interest to the citizens.

Editor Gazette:

"Mayor Fath's committee has asked me to make a public statement touching the charge made by Mr. Nichols' campaign committee that Mr. Finley's fine was unfairly remitted. It seems to me that this is wholly unimportant in this campaign. I am perfectly willing to state just what happened. The matter was wholly under my control as city attorney and Mayor Fath's never knew anything about it until it was brought to my attention. I felt when I was appointed city attorney that I had authority to do the city's law business as in my judgment appeared proper.

"The ordinance forbidding the sale of liquor to minors and providing that for violation the city may recover a fine from the offender. But the law in addition thereto gives the council the right to revoke the offender's license after conviction and in a separate and independent proceeding. Remember these are two separate proceedings entirely. The Municipal Court has no power to revoke licenses.

"At the trial of Mr. Finley for violating the ordinance, there was a dispute in the evidence, the number of witnesses on both sides being about the same. Within twenty-four hours after the verdict of the jury came, the case was appealed to the Circuit Court where it could not come on for trial until March or April following. The people of Janesville demanded that Finley's license be revoked, even men in the same business were strong in condemnation of that place. It was thought much more important that this license should be revoked promptly rather than after another trial three or four months later. Because another trial would cause much delay, expense and trouble to the city, I agreed to let the fine go if Mr. Finley would lay in license on the table for revocation without further ado about it. If he fought the case it would cost the city more to get the fine than the amount of the fine. That is exactly what occurred. It was my duty to propose this plan to get it, and would do the same thing again under the same circumstances. I got the case tried, the license revoked and the place closed up within thirty days after the complaint was made. The people wanted this saloon closed up and that was my sole and only object.

"In this same connection I might also say that while it is not in the platform, the question is raised by Mr. Knipp have to pay his fine. For the simple reason that he, for some cause, failed to take an appeal in time and never even attempted to take any. He never even denied his guilt. He admitted it at the preliminary hearing in the Bergsman murder case and again upon his own trial. And while the City did not care for Mr. Knipp's money any more than Mr. Finley's, after his failure to appeal, the matter was a closed incident.

"I made Knipp the same proposition that Finley got. I told his attorney if Knipp would come in and give up his license I would remit his fine. It wasn't money the city was after. His attorney, for some reason, preferred not to accept my offer and if Mr. Knipp has any kick coming he can lay the blame where it belongs.

"In their statement they say with much gusto that the docket entry is in my handwriting. Of course it is. Whose writing would they expect it to be in? They say the clerk refused to make the entry. This is nonsense. Why should he refuse to do something he was never asked to do and had no authority to do under any circumstances.

"In conclusion I might say that this really can be no issue in this or any other campaign. I am satisfied with what was accomplished in these two cases and I think the voters are also. I offer no apologies or excuses. There are none to be offered.

Respectfully submitted,
W. H. DOUGHERTY,
City Attorney.

MISS ELSIE HESSENAUER IS GIVEN A SURPRISE

Miss Elsie Hessebauer, whose marriage to Ollie Meyer is soon to take place, was pleasantly surprised by twenty-five young ladies from the Wednesday evening who gave her a miscellaneous show at her home. The bride-to-be received a number of very useful and attractive gifts. A dainty luncheon was served and a pleasant evening passed by all present.

Correction

In Howard's ad of yesterday, 69¢ values in Dressing Sacs were priced at 39 cents each. The ad should have read 69 cent values, sale price 50 cents.

Entirely a Personal Matter.
Mark Twain and his peculiarities were being discussed by an English class in a western high school. One youthful orator had very eloquently described Mark's personal appearance and had laid unusual stress on the author's fondness for wearing white flannel. "Gee!" said one much interested youth. ## MEN TO HAVE CHARGE DURING CHAUTAUQUA

Crops of Superintendents Who Will Supervise Summer Entertainment Course.

The chautauqua which will be held in this city next month, 1st to 6th, inclusive, will be supervised by a corps of competent superintendents. The list of young men in charge is as follows:

Olive MacWilliams, general superintendent in charge of the field force, operation and equipment, will be assisted by six week-end assistant general managers of the Redpath Circuit. His wide experience aids the Lincoln System in reaching a high state of efficiency. He will visit most of the chautauquas and our friends will be pleased with his courteous manner.

R. Glen Dunn is a dashing football player and orator from the University of Wisconsin. This is his third year with the Lincoln circuit. An apostle of sunshine, a Christian gentleman and a manly man, Mr. Dunn makes many friends for the system in every town where he is sent as the superintendent.

Albert E. Partridge for several years was a singing evangelist. This is his second season in chautauqua work. His tent is always a model of neatness, assuring the comfort of the audience. Mr. Partridge is an example of patience and perseverance, and the towns in his charge will be well pleased with his work.

Allen E. Denton by hard labor and industry worked his way through Northwestern university. He was honored with the presidency of the senior class for this year. Mr. Denton is especially well poised, and knows how to conduct a chautauqua in a business-like manner. This is his third chautauqua season.

Albert J. Behner is a scholar and debater, attending an Iowa college. As a Christian gentleman he is greatly beloved by his associates. This is his fourth year in chautauqua work and he never fails to please a town as their platform manager. Our patrons will be well satisfied with his efficient service.

Harry C. Satterthwaite is a business man from Indianapolis. He is an electrical engineer, chorister and Sunday school superintendent, and is especially interested in the success of the Lincoln chautauquas. Mr. Satterthwaite comes to us highly commended by Dr. Hill and other well-known friends in Indiana.

B. N. Andrews is a Pennsylvania "Dutchman," who for years has been a field man and speaker for the temperance cause. He leaves his home and family to spend the summer in chautauqua work, and will prove a good manager for our chautauqua season.

William J. Vaught is the Southern bass singer who last year was with the Dixie quartet. He is now completing his studies at Northwestern university. Mr. Vaught is a brilliant student, a capable manager, and possesses a charming personality. He will win favor and do splendid service.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

WEDDING THE OCEANS.

It has been exactly 400 years since Vasco Nunez de Balboa discovered the Pacific ocean.

This year, as a sort of gigantic quadracentennial of the event, we are promised the opening of the Panama canal.

Through the range of hills on which Balboa stood the big ditch will bear the world's commerce from "sea to shining sea."

The Panama canal has been the dream of centuries. It was only made an accomplished fact when a race came impatient of dreams and eager for deeds.

The actual work has occupied but few more years than the dream did centuries.

Immense obstacles had to be overcome. There are always obstacles to any worth while work.

Hundreds of millions of dollars had to be raised, tens of thousands of workmen had to be procured, hundreds of machines had to be created and set in place, great engineers had to be put in charge, a mountain range had to be removed, and a fever laden climate had to be transformed to one of health. All of these things have been accomplished with speed and efficiency and without much noise. Not only so, but the work is being completed short of the date originally promised.

Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war.

You and I, reader, are a part of the nation that performed this great work. Cannot we as individuals be equally efficient?

We do not have to dig canals perhaps or any other gigantic act attracting the attention of the world, yet our task is as important, relatively speaking, as that of piercing an isthmus and wedding two oceans.

A building is made up of many parts. If one brace is missing the structure is not complete or safe.

Our position may be that of a brace in the social edifice.

It thus becomes essential to all that we do our work well.

If it is important to society as a whole, however, it is infinitely more important to us as individuals. It means the difference between success and failure, between prosperity and poverty, between honor and dishonor, between comfort and misery.

It means, if we do not live up to our part, that we are losing a life.

Let us each reduce his mountain range, pierce through his isthmus of difficulty, overcome disease, organize his forces and wed the ocean of desires and dreams to that of accomplishment. It is only thus that our ships will come in, bearing their richly laden cargoes to bless our own and others' lives.

When looking for bargains in used household goods or other articles, turn to the Want Ad page.

Wanted Useful Article.
A suit having been brought against a defendant, his counsel interposed a demurrer that had the effect to throw it out of court. Soon afterward the same lawyer was elected to congress, and while at his post of duty he was surprised one day to receive a letter from his former client, saying: "I am sued, again. Please send me another one of them things they call demurrers."

The Main Issue

By REV. J. H. RALSTON
Secretary of Correspondence Department
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Rev. 5:9—For thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood.

from sin through the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ."

The goal of salvation with very many, and indeed, with almost all, is getting to heaven—if a man gets to heaven he is saved. Presuming that the answer is correct, and barring the advent of Jesus Christ, which will preclude the necessity of the Christian dying and his soul going to heaven as they now do, we may endorse that position. Let us note here some of the conceptions of salvation that men now hold, and of which we hear them speak, but are a part of personal conviction; in some cases, however, nothing more than feeling. In speaking of this we would not impugn the sincerity of those who hold them, but we are convinced that many of them are fatally mistaken. We have only space to note three of these exceptions.

I. One man says: "Man is saved through the inevitable operation of evolution. Man has been placed upon earth for the purpose of development, and if he exists beyond this life that development will continue until he reaches perfection." That is a widely received view, and the recent revival of the evolutionary theory as developed in scientific investigations, has largely strengthened it. Such writers as Alfred Tennyson, who speaks of that period "Far off, at last, to all," etc., have largely strengthened the idea, and it is known that evolutionary preachers, if they do not generally deny the salvation taught by Paul, as some do, so emphasize evolution, that the salvation of man is involved in the principle, and consequently nothing else is needed.

II. Many indulge the conception that man is saved by right living, but just at this point of right living there is difference of opinion as to what we mean. Many promptly say it means doing what is right, but do not define the word right. We must have some criterion of judgment, and we inquire for that. Many, if pressed, will say, it is acting in accordance with the teachings of the Bible, but here again there is difficulty, for many only consider the teachings of the Bible with reference to their relationship to their fellow men, and they claim that if they act honestly in their dealings with their fellow men, or as has been recently said, give every man a square deal, they are acting in accordance with the teachings of the Scripture. But, if a man is honest, must he not consider more than his fellow men? Does he not have God, who is the author of the Bible, to deal with? Is there nothing owing to him, aside from honesty in our dealings with our fellow men? What about high morals that are really personal, and what about the demands that are made upon men as to the worship of God, the dissemination of religious truth, the individual religious life, involving the study of God's word, prayer, etc.?

III. In these days there is a widespread conception that a church connection, or church life, is the essence of salvation, consequently multitudes are easily persuaded to connect with the church, and to adopt a more or less faithful church life. We have no time to call attention to the master's well-known denunciations of the churchism of his day, of the tithing of mint, anise and cummin, or Paul's teachings touching mere churchism in his day. The religion of Christ and the apostles was the religion that must have not only the shell of profession, but it must have the kernel of reality before God.

Here is the main issue, and a recent writer has in true and beautiful lines presented the thought in connection with holy communion:

"Savior divine! O evermore abide
In my cold heart! Redeemer, blessed Lord!
By all the powers in heaven and earth
Adored:
When flowed the dear blood from Thy wounded side
By God forsaken and by man denied—
Why was the crimson stream thus freely poured?
If man by love was not to be restored?
O mighty theme! that doth debate my pride;
And cast contempt on all the things of earth:
If angels are not faultless in His sight,
Of what account are we, who, from our birth,
Wander afar from heaven, and heaven's
dear light?
Yet it was not for them, but us He died,
And with Him all our sins are crucified!"

—Rockwell.

Just Think of It.
Think of the endless litigation which will probably be started when the meek inherit the earth.—Judge.

Moses Called to Deliver Israel. Ex. iii:1-Jr:20.
Golden Text—Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God. Matt. v:8.

(1) Verse 1—What circumstances had brought Moses, the Egyptian scholar, to be a keeper of sheep?

(2) Was it according to God's first best plan or not, and why, that Moses should be a keeper of sheep? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(3) How did Moses' forty years in the wilderness fit him for his life's work?

(4) What reason is there to believe that God sees to it that we get the training we need for the work which he sets us to do?

(5) Verse 2—Who was this "angel of the Lord"?

(6) Was this burning bush objective to Moses, or only subjective?

(7) Would it be any less real to Moses as a message from God or to us, as profitable history, if this entire scene were subjective? Why?

(8) Verse 3—Ought we or not to take time to investigate all new or strange spiritual phenomena? Why?

(9) Verse 4—Would you say or not, and why, that God always pays special attention and reveals himself more fully to those who give earnest heed to his first approaches?

(10) Verse 5—Why was that spot holy ground, and what was the significance of Moses taking off his shoes?

(11) What is the inference from the fact that God is the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob?

(12) Was there merit or demerit in the fact, and why, that Moses was afraid to look upon God?

(13) Verses 7-9—Through what one act were all the sufferings of Israel in Egypt a result?

(14) What reason is there to believe that God greatly sympathizes with the sorrows of the people, even when they are a result of their sins and that He always has a plan to deliver them?

(15) Verse 10—How long do you consider God had been making plans for Moses to deliver Israel from Egypt?

(16) Verse 11—Is it true or not, and why, that the more fit a person is for a great work the less he thinks himself fitted?

(17) Verses 12-15—Did God expect Moses to deliver his people or simply want him to be the instrument?

(18) Verses 16-22—What evidence is there in this story, that organization for any important enterprise is God's plan?

(19) What promises does God make, or what proofs does he give to Moses, that his mission shall be a success?

(20) Chapter iv:1-9—Is Moses' reluctance to undertake the work to be praised or blamed, and why?

(21) What further evidence did God give to Moses that his mission would be a success?

(22) What is the nature and the kind of evidence which a good man has today that he will succeed in the work to which God has appointed him?

(23) Verses 10-20—What are the excuses which Moses made to God in order to shun his work?

(24) Why is it unreasonable and wicked to think that God ever asks a man to do a work without giving him the ability and the opportunity to do it?

(25) What honor did Moses lose, and what does every man lose who refuses to do the work which God assigns him?

BRODHEAD

Brodhead, July 17.—Funeral services for the late Mrs. Addie Hill were held yesterday at her late home conducted by Rev. C. N. Foster of Oregon, assisted by Rev. A. Dinsdale.

Mr. Jess Foster accompanied a company of land seekers to the Blitter Root Valley in Montana Tuesday.

Brodhead is fast recovering from the effects of the big storm. Hundreds of trees have been cut up and tobacco sheds are being cleared away to make room for the new ones which will take their places.

The Methodist Sunday school picnic takes place at the Clarence Bridge on Friday.

Mrs. C. C. Evelyn of Canada is in the city for an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Busch.

John Busch of Chicago is in the city attending to business matters.

Funeral services for the late Elmer Olsen were conducted today at his home by the Rev. Haavik of Orfordville. Interment was in the West Luther Valley cemetery.

The storm Tuesday night badly damaged the brick building occupied by Day & Pearson's blacksmith shop by tearing away several square yards of the brick veneering, when it was struck by lightning.

Miss Jessie Thompson of Chicago came out Tuesday to attend the funeral of her aunt, the late Mrs. Addie Hill.

Attorney Frank Lucas and wife and baby of Madison are the guests of the former's parents, Mrs. Bushie Lucas.

FATHERS SHOULD BE JANESVILLE MAYOR DECLARES WESTON

Veteran Pedestrian States That Fathers Is Right Man For Office Of Mayor—Gives Address.

"I think Fathers should always be Mayor of Janesville," exclaimed Edward Payson Weston in an interview last evening. He is a noble and honest man, and I believe he is the man Janesville really needs." When the recall entered the mind of Mr. Weston he knew not what such a thing was, and when he was asked concerning it, he remarked, that there should be no such thing in government, and that he had seen nothing like it before.

Mr. Weston in the few remarks he made at the Myers Theatre last evening, praised the present mayor repeatedly, which brought forth much applause, from the audience.

To talk with Mr. Weston personally is really worth while, for he is a well educated man and has a great memory. He enjoys the exercise which he daily receives, and claims he would be lost without it.

His interesting talk last evening, brought forth many facts to those present, which were astonishing. Hints on walking was his main subject, and he claims that walking is the best remedy for health. Man is not a poor creature, but is wonderfully made. This was his aim when he started walking. He determined to show to the world that walking, and a lot of it, was a possible thing, and he has certainly worked out the experiment very well.

When he started to tramp, he was affected with rheumatism, and was unable to walk much. Soon through his own efforts, and without the aid of any doctor, he was able to walk across a good sized room several times. Thirty days elapsed, and after this period of time he was able to walk twenty-eight miles in one day. Since that time, he has walked thirty thousand miles throughout the world.

When walking, do not use your feet, says Mr. Weston. "Merely push your boots with your feet, and let the boots do the walking. To do this requires shoes on size larger than a person usually wears."

With Mr. Weston, is Dan Richter, a reporter for the Minneapolis Tribune, and a young man of thirty-five. He was sent to Chicago by the paper, to walk with Mr. Weston from Chicago to the northern metropolis. He is standing the tramp very well, taking into consideration that he is not used to such hard work. The first night, he was laid up with blisters, but after soaking his feet in sea salt and water, blisters were ready the next morning to continue the journey.

Mr. Richter stated last evening that Mr. Weston was an extremely interesting man to walk with. He had nothing to say, as the scenery was especially attractive to him. One interesting incident concerning the veteran pedestrian's life, is that while on his tramps, he stops every five miles, just long enough to drink his usual amount of milk. From one to two quarts in his nourishment for every five miles.

Mr. Weston and his companion Mr. Richter left last evening at nine, twenty for Evansville, where they will continue their tramp to Madison and then on to Minneapolis, where they expect to reach by August second. A dispatch from Madison says, Weston, is due to arrive in Madison at about 5:30 this afternoon from Evansville, Wisconsin from which place he departed at 7:45 this morning. He will rest in Madison tonight.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Written and publication authorized by the John C. Nichols' personal committee and to be paid for by their treasurer, John E. Kennedy at the rate of 25 cents per inch.

An Invisible Government at Work

Strenuous efforts are being made by the supporters of the Mayor to befool the real issues in the campaign by hiding under the guise of morality till their cant smells to Heaven, we the undersigned, acting under authority of the Personal Campaign Committee of John C. Nichols, herewith submit what we believe is the issue when stripped to the very core.

As the tale that the workings of the Invisible Government unfolds is a long one, it will appear in installments, the first of which was published yesterday.

Respectfully submitted,

H. L. MAXFIELD, Chairman
J. S. SMITH, Secretary
The Personal Campaign Committee

When the Primary election disclosed the strength of the uprising of the people and showed that eighteen hundred people went to the polls to select a candidate to contest the re-election of the present Mayor, a cold shiver ran down the spine of the Invisible Government.

Little suspecting the extent of the awakening of the people, it now finds itself in a desperate situation, and driven to bay, has set it back to the wall and with grim determination resolves to beat back the wave of popular fury.

With a man in the Mayor's chair whom they cannot seduce their power will vanish, so it is no wonder that such desperate efforts are put forth to retain the present incumbent, and conscious of the fact that if the people triumph next Tuesday, their power in local politics will be broken and the water works taken from them.

Its presence in the City Hall discovered, the Invisible Government now hides behind the cloak of morality and holding the devil above the city, points to it as the issue in the campaign.

With the tremendous power of its wealth this Invisible Government sends out its hand and by subtle means brings the forces of religion and benevolence to its assistance, loudly proclaiming its mission to be the saving of the community from the sins of its inhabitants.

Daily it sends its men out to cant the stock phrases "wide open town;" "recall started by saloon keepers;" "save the girls and boys;" as though none but they possessed the instinct of good fatherhood and motherhood. In the same way that "as the flag is the last refuge of a scoundrel," so is virtue the mask of the devil.

Every conceivable means is being used to deceive the voters and distract their attention from the real issue in this campaign, but the people are fully awakened and will end next Tuesday the political career of James A. Fathers and the Invisible Government of Janesville.

Sugar's Real Value.

A cane sugar solution injected directly into the blood is apparently unfit for assimilation, for it is eliminated by the kidneys unchanged. The real value of sugar seems to be that the carbon obtained from its disintegration is available for forming the gas known as carbureted hydrogen or methane, which seems indispensable to the growth and respiratory processes of all living organisms.—American Food Journal.

Cora, countess of Strafford, a popular member of London's Anglo-American society, has changed her name quite a number of times. She began life as Miss Smith; she married first Samuel Colgate of New York and after his death she married the late Lord Strafford. Martin Kennard is her third husband.

The area of high pressure that was centered yesterday over the eastern Lak Region has moved toward the Atlantic and is now over New England. High pressure and fair weather prevails over the country west of the Mississippi with the exception of the region of permanent low pressure in the Southwest and Nebraska and the Dakotas, from the eastern borders of the Dakotas to the Atlantic coast rains have fallen in all the states bordering on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river. Weather in the Southern states is under the control of an area of high pressure that is central over the Gulf of Mexico. Temperatures have risen throughout the entire country with the exception of the far Northwest.

TWO KINDS OF MEMORY.

DID YOU ever happen to notice in studying yourself and those around you, that there are two distinct kinds of memory possessed by different people; the mental memory and the visual memory.

That is, some people remember everything as facts in relation to other facts, while other people remember everything visually as if their minds contained actual photographic imprints of the scenes or events. Perhaps that isn't entirely plain to you. Let me try to make it simpler by a concrete example.

I have a friend who has the visual memory in a very strong form. Now I have a terrible faculty for losing things. One day when I was shopping I met this friend. We talked for two or three minutes and then I passed on. Sometime during the day I managed to mislay an important bundle. To assist me in my investigations, I wanted to find at what time I lost it and so I called up my friend and asked her if I had that bundle in my possession when she saw me. She knew at once. "Yes, you had it under your right arm," she said. "You had two smaller bundles under your left arm, and your wrist was on your left wrist."

I have no doubt that she could have gone on and described every detail of my costume from the crown of my hat to the rubber heels on my walking shoes. That's what I mean by visual memory.

Now I have a mental memory. I could have told exactly what we two said, but except that my friend wore something blue and looked very nice, I couldn't have called up a single visual detail of our meeting. This girl and I went to the same school and studied together. Sometimes we would want to turn to some passage in a book we had studied and she would say, "It was on the right hand page near the bottom."

She remembered dates by the looks of them; I, either by a sheer effort of will, or by some associated fact.

I can never remember how people look; I cannot even clearly call up the faces of those I love best when I am absent from them. Positive glimpses will sometimes come to me uncalled, but when I make a deliberate effort to recall a face I cannot get it at all.

Descriptions of places in fiction bore me to extinction. I was talking about this to a friend with whom I read a great deal. She enjoys them immensely, and by comparing them to the confusion that this is because she is a visual thinker and gets a mental picture, while I, being a mental thinker, get none.

Perhaps "picture thinker" and "thought thinker" might be better terms to describe these two classes.

It is always interesting to analyze one's self, because one is sure of an interesting subject and an interested audience. So perhaps you'd like to decide to which class you belong.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

THE importance of scientific cooking can hardly be exaggerated. Intellectual labor is, in its origin, as dependent upon the art of cooking as the dissemination of its results is dependent upon paper-making and printing.

DISHES TO TRY.

When a change is desired from the ordinary frozen dishes, Grape Sherbet will be well preparing. Soak half a box of gelatin in cold water to cover, half an hour; cover with a cup of boiling water and let stand in a warm place until thoroughly dissolved. Boil two pints of water with one of sugar, add a pint of grape juice, the juice of two lemons and the dissolved gelatin. Cool and freeze. Serve in small glasses on grape leaves.

Dutch Rabbit.—Prepare the rabbit and put an onion inside; put it into a baking pan and pour over it a cup of water. Cover with another pan and steam one hour. Remove the cover and baste with the following mixture: A tablespoonful of currant jelly, half a cup of vinegar, a tablespoonful of fresh butter and a teaspoonful of prepared mustard. Serve with baked onions and brown gravy.

Roast Duck and Rice.—Stuff the duck with five apples, five onions, four lemons of sage and thyme, fry brown in three tablespoonfuls of butter, add sufficient boiled rice to make of the consistency to handle, season with salt, celery seed and cayenne. Roast, basting often.

Tutti Frutti Pudding.—This is a very rich pudding, and should be served in very small portions: Use half a cup of beef suet chopped fine, one-half cup of butter, one cup of maple syrup, half a cup of sugar, one cup of sour cream into which has been stirred a teaspoonful of soda, two eggs (whites and yolks beaten separately); fold in a cup of flour, a cup of graham and a teaspoonful of cream of tartar sifted with the flour. Lightly flour a third of a cup of candied cherries, a half cup of raisins, a fourth of a cup of citron and a half cup of almond meats. Mix into the mixture and steam in small molds for two hours. A hard sauce flavored with nutmeg is good for this pudding.

Cherry Ice.—Put and crush two quarts of cherries, sprinkle with a quart of sugar, add the crushed kernels of a dozen cherries and let them stand two hours; add a pint of water, press through a strainer and nearly freeze. When partly frozen, add the whites of two eggs beaten stiff. Serve in glasses with fresh cherries to garnish.

GOWN OF GREEN
CREPE DE CHINE

When washing clothes in hard water take a large tablespoonful of any good washing powder, dissolve in cupful of boiling water and put in rinse water. Make it just like soft water and the clothes won't be streaked.

A solution of ammonia and rain water will remove spots from carpet. Alcohol is the best agent for removing grass stains from white dresses.

To set the color in wash fabrics, use a tablespoonful of sea salt in each two quarts of water.

The Table.—Two cups of milk, two eggs, six heaping tablespoonfuls of flour, one saltspoonful of salt, a pinch of baking powder. Sift the flour into a basin with the salt, stir in the milk very gradually, beat up the eggs and add to the batter when quite smooth; allow this to stand for two hours in a cool place, then add the baking powder, pour into a well-greased baking pan, bake for half an hour in a moderate oven. If baked in gas oven, it should be partly baked in the top of the oven, then finish by placing it in the lower part of the oven.

Baked Tomatoes.—Cut three large tomatoes in halves across, and shake out the liquid and seeds contained in them. Put all this into a saucepan, with one ounce chopped bacon, one chopped shallot, one heaping tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of flour, one tablespoonful chopped parsley, pepper, salt and grate of nutmeg; stir all over the fire for eight to ten minutes (all are quite cooked). Then add a cupful of fine bread crumbs, one ounce grated cheese and mix. Divide this mixture into six portions and stuff each of the halves with this; sprinkle a few bread crumbs on the top and bake in the oven for fifteen minutes. Serve on small rounds of buttered toast.

Sultana Roll.—Scald two cups of milk, add one tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with a little cold milk, and cook for twenty minutes, stirring all the time, then add two well-beaten eggs and stir until the mixture thickens. Allow to cool, then add one quart of whipped cream, one teaspoonful each of lemon and orange extract, and a few drops of green coloring, then freeze. Line a mold with one-inch layer of the cream and fill the center with the following mixture:

Mix together two cups of sugar, one teaspoonful of rose extract, and one cupful of sultana raisins which have been soaked for two and a half hours in sherry wine. Cover, hind with a buttered strip of muslin and bury in ice and salt for three hours.

Cut up slices and serve with claret sauce. For the sauce, boil one cupful of water with one cupful of sugar for fifteen minutes. Cool, add five tablespoonfuls of claret and serve ice cold.

MENU HINTS FOR SUMMER.

If I were to ask every housekeeper in the land, "what is your greatest difficulty experienced in cooking?" I am sure every one would reply, "making out the menu."

For years I have been besieged by women to issue a book or card index of menus all made and ready for use, and I have determinedly refused, as I have seemed so little real help to any one. Each home has its own conditions and problems, and at best menus planned by any one outside of the family can only be suggestive. But I have planned a method of correctly combining seasonal foods which is very easily done and suited to every family's individual needs. A few of the combinations from this menu card are here given.

Watch the Left-Overs.—In using the following guide for every-day menu making, find out your present food supply first. Look carefully after every tablespoonful of the "left-overs" in the refrigerator writing these down on a pad of paper.

We will suppose, for the purpose of making it clear, that celery is found in the refrigerator—not quite fresh enough for the table, but will answer perfectly for soup. Then start your menu with No. 1 under soups, which is cream of celery soup; follow with No. 1 under meats, No. 1 under vegetables and so on until your entire menu is made, planning to use, if not in the dinner, in some meal, all the "left-overs" written down. Numbers corresponding exactly with each other working forward or backward will make the combination right.

Put a tick on a clean sheet from the pad and make out your grocery order for at least three meals ahead.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People
By FRANCIS JOYCE KENNEDY

Homer Clark Bennett, M. D., of Lima, Ohio, wrote the verses I am running in my "Talk" space today. "In the busy world around us, As we see it day by day, While we hurry on, unmindful Of the beauties by the way, There are those who in the turmoil Of the busy strife for gain, Pass by gems of greatest value Which they long have sought in vain."

While they search with greatest ardor, Looking high, and far, and wide, They o'er look the thing they're seeking.

And go onward in their pride, Till some habler, maker, brother, Trawling o'er the self-same track, Finds the gem on which the other, Passing by, had turned his back.

Thus we see that those deluded That the good beyond is found,

And pursuing this, neglecting All the better things around, Get a miss, it is, while another, No phantasmal good in mind, Ever watchful, finds the jewel, And thus benefits mankind.

Like the children in the story, Gathering lilies on the bank, Always hoping, ever seeking, For still prettier ones beyond, Put off plucking till the boatman, Loved the craft back to the land, And the darkness coming on then, Found them, each with empty hand.

So may we be prone to wander, And neglect our chances thus, Till the opportune time passes, Never to return to us, Then let us be up and doing, Gather flowers while we may, Do our best now, and remember, We're not coming back this way."

DIVORCE IS END OF GRAY SCANDAL

Main Duties of Life.
To do with as few things as we can, and, as far as we can, to see to it that these things are the work of freedom and not of slaves; these two seem to me to be the main duties to be fulfilled by those who wish to live a life at once free and refined, serviceable to others, and pleasant to themselves. —William Morris.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

CONDUCTED BY MRS. ALICE FORCUM, KEN.

Looking after the dry-groceries at the same time, such as tea, coffee, sugar, soap, starch, etc. This is usually done right after breakfast. After looking after the dry-groceries at the house a choice will be found. For instance, in No. 1 under vegetables there will be several from which to select and also in many others. With this method all food properties are given and at the same time foods are properly balanced.

It is not necessary to have a recipe for every change in soups, sauces, salads, etc. If you have a recipe for one sauce, dressing or cream soup as a working basis, you can make others.

Soups.—1, cream of celery; 2, clear soup; 3, puree of vegetables.

Meat.—1, roast beef or beef steak; 2, broiled beef; 3, heart, fricassee, braised, baked.

Sauces, Dressings.—1, cream of horseradish, sauce, Worcestershire sauce; 2, parsley sauce, tomato sauce, brown sauce, onion sauce, celery dressing; 3, brown sauce, tomato sauce, sage dressing, bread stuffing.

Vegetables.—(The first vegetables after each number or the carbonaceous or heat and energy producers, and one of these should be used in the menu regardless of other vegetables selected); 1, white potatoes, carrots or spinach a la Hollandaise, sprouts, mushrooms, string beans, lima beans; 2, egg plant, squash, tomatoes; 3, peas, stuffed with baked potatoes; creamed cabbage, parsnip, truffles, macaroni, string beans, spaghetti, stuffed tomatoes.

Salads.—lettuce or endive, French dressing, oil, vinegar, French dressing, orange and grape fruit salad, French dressing, combination salad, French dressing; 2, apple and celery salad, eggs in aspic jelly, cabbage salad, cream dressing, cream dressing; 3, grated carrot salad, French dressing, mayonnaise of asparagus, salad a la Hausen.

Desserts.—1, pineapple or other fruit ice, chocolate or prune soufflé; 2, sliced bananas in grape fruit, peach shortcake, steamed dates with whipped cream; 3, apple Charlotte, rice, split-apple compote, lemon curd, starch pudding, marshmallow pudding.

ins, stuffed dates, corn, chestnuts; 2, olives, radishes; 3, chow-chow.

SAVES GREEK FAMILY FROM BULGARIANS BY DANGEROUS JOURNEY

Ralph Chesbrough, Vice Consul At Constantinople, and Nephew Of Emerald Grove Woman

In Heroic Act.

Risking his own life in a voyage over miles of water so thickly planted with mines that the various governments would not accept any responsibility for the consequences, Ralph Chesbrough, vice-consul general at Constantinople, a former Beloit man, and nephew of Mrs. F. B. Childs residing near Emerald Grove, saved family of Greeks, American citizens from the Bulgarians in the pursuance of his duties a few weeks ago. The family was in the country when it was captured from the Turks by the Bulgarians, and the father, a naturalized American, went to Turkey to obtain the release of his wife and children from the army camp in which they had been kept for several months because of the destitution in the captured city.

Mr. Chesbrough was commissioned by the consul general to bring the family to Constantinople. He arrived at his destination safely, his boat being the first to enter the harbor for five months. The inhabitants of the little city were wild with joy, especially the family to whom he brought release and protection. They were brought away after the rigorous diplomatic requirements were met.

Mr. Chesbrough visited the scene of the execution of eleven prominent Turks at Constantinople while the bodies were still swaying from the tripods, from which they had been sent to death. The doorman at the Turkish grand vizier and their execution was in public, at the place where the ruler was slain. Mr. Chesbrough secured a photograph of the men hanging on the rope. The bodies hung in the public gaze for many hours.

Mr. Chesbrough speaks five or six languages and with the turbulent times in which he is cast, he is having experiences that will make his life full of interest, even if he sees more out of the ordinary in experiences.

He writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chesbrough of Beloit, that he hopes to come home for a time this fall.

SIXTY AGENTS SICK FOLLOWING BANQUET

Janesville Man Who Attended Affair In Milwaukee Doesn't Eat Lobster Salad And Escapes Poisoning.

Because F. A. Blackman of this city who attended the convention of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance agents in Milwaukee this week, didn't eat lobster salad or white fish which was served at the banquet at the Milwaukee Auditorium, Tuesday evening, he escaped serious illness from what is declared to be ptomaine poisoning. Sixty or more of the men who attended the affair were ill the next day, some of them being so sick that they had to be carried from the convention hall.

"I am quite sure that it was either the fish which was served cold, or the lobster salad, which was responsible for the damage," said Mr. Blackman today. "I don't eat fish of any kind and survived the banquet without ill effects, so it must have been the fish which did me in. Some fifteen or more of them that I know were pretty sick."

The poisoning was not so serious that anyone died, but it was so serious that some of the men will in Milwaukee because they do not feel well enough to return to their home. The meal was served by a Milwaukee caterer.

CHANGE OF STAMPS INCREASES BUSINESS

Use of Ordinary Adhesive For Parcel Post Proves Popular With People.

The change in the parcel post rules and regulations permitting the use of regular postage stamps on the parcel post matters has not only increased the business in this department of the post office but has also increased convenience, according to Postmaster C. L. Valentine, postmaster at the Janesville office. The change allowing people to use either type of stamps on Parcel Post or straight mail matter went into effect July first.

Although figures have not been compiled in the local office, Postmaster Valentine states that the business increase is evident at the end of the quarter will show large receipts than in any previous year since the installation of the system.

Under the new stamp regulations a person may send parcels post matter through the mail by the use of the regular stamp which makes it unnecessary for a person to keep on hand two different kinds of stamps. Under the old method hundreds of packages were held daily in the various post offices throughout the country because of the use of the wrong stamps. All trouble of this sort has ceased since the new ruling went into effect and it also serves to aid the government employees in their work.

The Parcel Post business has been largely increased by the C. I. D. system and the merchants are using it to a great advantage. The lowering of the insurance rate to five cents on twenty-five dollars has also increased the amount of mail sent to a great extent and the amount of mail that is insured is about doubled to what it used to be.

Why is the soda cracker today such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package. Five cents.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States, was born 146 years ago today at Braintree, Massachusetts.

He was one of the most industrious presidents we have ever had, as is shown by the fact that he kept a diary for fifty years without skipping a few pages and writing it up at the end of the week. The diary is full of meaty Unitarian language, especially those parts which refer to people with whom he was not on speaking terms.

Before deciding to become president, Mr. Adams served an apprenticeship with his father, who took his meals at the White House for four years and then retired at the urgent request of Thomas Jefferson. Having observed that the office was not worth anything, he was filled by lawyers, the younger Adams went through Harvard college on a dog trot and then began to practice law on some of his poorer clients. At odd times he would pick up a quill pen and bore a few holes through Tom Paine's works, and he is said to have been the first man in this country who wrote for the papers and signed himself "Pro Bono Publico."

Mr. Adams served as minister to various foreign countries, and refused to wear any uniform other than a grave look and a pepper and salt suit. He also ran short of electoral votes and had to fall back on the house of representatives, which promptly elected him and swatted Henry Clay and Andrew Jackson in the seat of their ambition.

Mr. Adams made a good president, but as he refused to locate postmasters where they would do congressmen the most good he was retired at the end of his term with pleasing unanimity.

After leaving the White House, Mr. Adams was elected to congress and remained there for seventeen years, meanwhile keeping up his diary with the utmost firmness. He died February 23, 1828, from paralysis, engendered by the writer's cramp. Mr. Adams was not giddy in dress or person, but as a high-minded patriot, scholar and publicist he has had few competitors.

Now Are the Days Children Need Care

Summer Heat Dangerous to Little Ones Whose Bowels Are Neglected.

A mother cannot do better for her children than to teach them from their earliest days regularity of the bowels. Regularity can be promoted without the child knowing it by watching its food and by so varying the food that all the elements of digestion are used, when nature will do the rest. The future health of the child depends upon this.

But try as you will there are times when the little one will become constipated and bilious. In hot weather immediate attention is necessary, as many serious diseases result from stuffed-up bowels. Don't give salts or cathartics or purgatives, as they are too harsh, but give a gentle, pleasant-tasting bowel stimulant like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been used by the children of this as well as a former generation, and thousands of families are proud to speak well of it, among whom we can mention Mrs. Louise Reynolds, 909 Jackson St., St. Louis, Mo., who is glad to recommend it, and Mr. Chas. W. Allen, Manor, Tex., who writes that the often felt 100 years old but feels younger now than his years.

Every druggist sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a large bottle. It will cure constipation and biliousness in young or old, break up a cold and stop summer diarrhoea by ridding the bowels of the poisons and germs that cause the trouble. It is a grand family laxative, with valuable tonic properties.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 413 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

THE SECRET OF LONESOME COVE

BY
SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS
Author of
"AVERAGE JONES, ETC."

"Thank you for myself," said Sedgwick. "If you were twenty years younger I would break every bone in your body for that."

"Steady, Frank," put in Kent. "Judge no man by his speech who has been through what Alexander Blair has been through tonight. Mr. Blair, he added, "you've refused my offer, it is still open. And as an extra, I will undertake, for Mr. Sedgwick and myself, that this night's affair shall be kept secret. And now, the next thing is to cover the evidence. Spades, Frank."

The two men took up their tools. "I'll spell you," said Alexander Blair. "While the sheriff, mourning softly over his fractured wrist, sat watching the house in case of alarm, the scientist, the painter, and the trust magnate, sweating amid the nameless graves, hurriedly reentered the sack of clean earth which bore the name of Wilfrid Blair."

"And now," said Chester Kent, petting his blistered palms as the last shovelful of dirt was tamped down, "I'll take you back with me, Mr. Sedgwick, to Sedgwick's place, and do the best I can for you till the morning. About six o'clock we'll find you unconscious below the cliffs where you fell in the darkness. Eh?"

"Despite his pain the sheriff grinned. "I guess that's as good as the next life," he acquiesced. "You fight fair, Professor?"

"Then answer me a fair question. What were you doing at Hedgerow House tonight?"

"Why, you see," drawled the official. "I saw you fishin' that stream, and it came to my mind that you was castin' a net for more than trout that night. But I didn't hardly think you'd come to soon, and I was asleep when the noise of the spade on the coffin woke me."

"Eh? Work and clumsy?" commented Kent with a scowl. "Coop along. My car will carry three. Sedgwick can sit on the floor. Good night, Mr. Blair. All aboard, Frank!"

"What became of Sedgwick?" demanded Kent. "He was here half a minute ago; I'll swear to that," muttered the sheriff.

"Frank! Frank!" he called half under his breath.

"Not too loud," besought Alexander Blair. "The clouds closed over the moon. Somewhere in the open a twig cracked. Sedgwick had disappeared."

CHAPTER XVI.

The Meeting.

Hope had surged up, sudden and fierce in Sedgwick's heart, at the gleam of the candle in Hedgerow House. He was ready for any venture after the swift climax of the night, and the hope hardened into determination. But now the enterprise was concluded, to what final purpose he could not guess. He was his own man again, and, perhaps, behind that gleam woman—his own woman, waited the maid his revolver beside his spade, and slipped into the shadows.

He heard Kent's impatient query. He saw him as he picked up the relinquished weapon and examined it, and, estimating the temper of his friend, was sure that the scientist would not stop to search for him. In the creek and into the darkness beyond. Mr. Blair, walking with heavy steps and fallen head, made his way back to the house. Sedgwick heard the door close behind him, and light shone for a time in the second story. It disappeared. With infinite caution, Sedgwick made the detour, gained the north wing, stepped forth in the bright moonlight, the presence of passion throbbing wildly in his breast.

She sat at the window, head high to him, bowed in roses. Her face was turned slightly away. Her long fine hands lay, inert, on the sill. Her face, purity itself in the pure moonlight, seemed dimmed with weariness and strain, a flower glowing through a mist.

With a shock of remembrance that was almost grotesque, Sedgwick realized that he had no name by which to call her. So he called her by the name that was Love's own.

She did not change. Her lips parted. Her lids drooped and quivered. She was as one in a lovely dream.

He stepped toward her and spoke again.

"You!" she cried; and her voice breaking from a whisper into a thrill of pure music. "You!"

There was, in the one syllable, so much of terror that his heart shivered; so much of welcome that his heart leaped; so much of joy that his heart sang.

Bending he pressed his lips on her hands, and felt them tremble beneath his kiss. They were withdrawn, and fluttered for the briefest moment, at his temples. Then she spoke, hurriedly and softly.

"You must go. At once! At once!" "When I have just found you?" "If you have any care for me—for my happiness—for my good name—go away from this house of dread. Of what? What do you find here then?" "Sufter," said she. Then bit her lips. "No! No! I didn't mean it. It is only that the mystery of it—I am unstrung and weak. Tomorrow all will be right. Only go."

"I will," said Sedgwick firmly. "And you shall go with me." "Where?" "To the gold mine and the silver mine. See the gold mine and the silver mine. And the last bird fly into the last light."

"Don't!" she begged. "Not that! It brings back that week too poignantly. Oh, my dear, please, please go."

"Listen," he said. "Heart of my heart, don't know what curse hangs over this house; but this I do know, that I can not leave you here. Come with me now. I will find some place for you tonight, and tomorrow we will be married."

With a sharp movement she shrank back from him.

"Married! Tomorrow!" The words seemed to choke her. "Don't you know who I am? I am the mounting blood as came back to him."

"If you are married already," he said unsteadily, "it—it would be better, me that Kent had let him shoot."

"Who?" she cried. "What has been passing here. You have been in danger?"

"What does it matter?" he returned. "What does any matter but this? 'Hark!' she broke in, a spasm of terror contracting her face. Footsteps sounded within. There was the noise of a door opening and closing. Around the turn of the wing Alexander Blair stepped into view. His pistol was still in his hand.

"Still here, sir?" he inquired with an effect of murderous courtesy. "You are spying to your other practices, then. He took a step forward and saw the girl. "My God! Marjorie!" he cried.

Sedgwick turned white, at the cry, but he fed the older man steadily. "He's here," he said. "He's here, made a terrible mistake. The blame is wholly mine. I beg you to believe that I came here wholly without the knowledge of—of your wife."

"Oh, no, no. Not that!" the girl cried out. "Not!" exclaimed Sedgwick.

"Then—"

"Marjorie!" interrupted Mr. Blair. "do you know this man?"

"Yes," she said quietly. "Since when?"

"Since two weeks."

"And he has come here before?"

"No."

"Then why do I find him here with you tonight? This night of all nights?"

"He is not here with me," said she, flushing.

"Come from—from where you saw me," began Sedgwick, "on a reckless impulse. Believe me, sir—"

"One moment! Marjorie, I think you had best go to your room."

"The girl's soft lips straightened into a line of inflexibility. "I wish to speak to Mr. Sedgwick," she said.

"Speak then, and quickly."

"No! I wish to speak to him alone. There is an explanation which I owe him."

"And there is one which he owes you," retorted Blair. "As he seems to have been too cowardly to give it, I will supply his deficiencies. In order that there may be no misunderstanding, let me present Mr. Francis Sedgwick, the murderer."

A low cry, the most desolate, the most stricken sound that Sedgwick had ever heard from human lips, came from the air. Before he could gather his senses, stop and deny, she had drawn herself to her feet and the rose-bowered window framed only emptiness. Sedgwick whirled upon the woman. "Of course," he said with a ghastly calmness; "you know that you lie."

"I know that I speak truth," retorted Mr. Blair with so profound a conviction that the other was shaken.

"Is it possible that you really believe it?" he exclaimed.

"So possible that, but for the scandal I would do what I can to invoke the law to do, and exact life for life. And to crown all, I find you with my son's wife!"

"Your son's wife!" The cry burst from Sedgwick's lips.

"In the dead of night, at a rendezvous," said Sedgwick very low. "For which I shall kill you if you dare repeat it even to your own thoughts. It was no rendezvous. It was a vile, vicious thing that you can't believe in innocence? Stop and think! How could it have been a rendezvous, when I came here, as you know, for another purpose?"

"It is true," said the other thoughtfully. "That still remains to be explained."

"By you," returned the artist. "You speak of your son's wife. To carry out the fate of the sham burial, shouldn't you have said his 'wife'?"

"The widow of a day—as you well know," answered Mr. Blair bitterly. "As I do not know, at all. But I think I begin to see light. The rose-tinted eyes of the dead woman's neck. Her topazes. That helps to clear it up. The dead woman was some past light-love of Wilfrid Blair's. She gave her either to reassert her sway over him or to blackmail him. He followed her to the cliffs and killed her, perhaps in a drunken frenzy. And you, Mr. Alexander Blair, to save your own life, have concealed him somewhere, bribed the sheriff and the medical officer, contrived this false death and burial, and are now turning suspicion on a man you know to be innocent, rather to fortify your position. But what damnable lie have you told her?"

"During this exposition, Alexander Blair's face was a study in changing emotions. At the close his lips curled in the suggestion of a sardonic grin.

I leave you to the company of your theory, sir," said he, and the door closed sharply after him.

Three hours later, wet and bedraggled, but with a fire at his heart, the night-farer came to his home and roused Kent from slumber on the studio couch.

"And where have you been?" demanded the scientist.

"She was in the house, I've seen her."

"Exactly what I wish to prevent. I don't think you've done yourself any good."

"Any good," groaned his friend. "She left me believing that I am the murderer of the unknown woman."

"Indeed! You've done worse, even than I had feared. Tell me."

In brief outline, Sedgwick told of the moonlight interview. Kent gripped at his ear lobe, and for a time sought silently to draw clarification of ideas from it.

"Do you know," he said at length, "I wouldn't wonder if Blair really thought you the murderer. Sedgwick savagely. 'He knows who murdered that woman. It was his own son, whom he pretended to bury, for a blind.' And the artist proceeded to outline eagerly his new developed idea.

"An interesting story," said Chester Kent slowly. "A very interesting and ingenious theory. I'll admit to you now that something of the sort occurred to my mind early in the development of the mystery, but I forsake it because of one fact that rather militates against its probability."

"What is that?"

"The fact," replied Kent with a slow smile, "that Wilfrid Blair was dead before his father ever learned of the tragedy of Lonesome Cove."

CHAPTER XVII.

Chance Sits in.

Suit case at his side, Chester Kent came to the station for the morning train to Boston. Before him paced Sedgwick, with a face of storm, stood on the platform of the Martin. On the train, the artist declared, with that peculiar flatness of obstinacy which goes with an assertion repeatedly made. "Not you, nor any other man, can do it for me."

"Not you, nor any other man, should attempt it at all, now," retorted the scientist.

"That's the view of the pedant," cried Sedgwick. "What do you know of nothing, except as a force obstructive to reason."

"But, Chet, I must see her again," pleaded Sedgwick; "I must—"

"But that tact and delicacy which you displayed at your last meeting, broke in Kent, curtly. "Asking a woman to marry you, on the day of her husband's burial!"

"I wasn't her husband's burial," said Sedgwick, checked by the nervous pacing. "Do you think so? You believe she wasn't a party to that ghastly fraud?"

"Certainly not. She attended the funeral ceremony in good faith. In my belief the real circumstances of Blair's death are as unknown to her as the rare to you."

"Assuming, always that he is dead. Your confidence being so sound, it must be based on something. How did he come to his death?"

"If I knew that, I shouldn't be going to Boston to consult an astrologer."

"How do you still get astrology on the brain?"

"Hopelessly," smiled Kent. "Luck go with you. And I—"

"Yes, and you?" queried Kent, as the other hesitated.

"I am going back to Hedgerow House," concluded the artist obstinately.

"If I were employed to work on this case," observed Kent dispassionately, "it were a mere commission, undertaken ten minutes before I should throw it up right here and now. He took a long strong pull at the extension end of his ear, and hisisted a bar or two of Pagniac. "Do you know where room 571 at the Eyrie?" he asked abruptly.

"No. Yes; I do, too. That's your temple of white silence, isn't it?"

"Walk up to the hotel. Give this card to the clerk. Get the key. Go to that room at once. Lie down on your back with your eyes open, and think for one hour by the watch. If at the end of the hour, you still believe you're right, go ahead. Will you do it?"

"Agreed. It's a bargain. But it won't change my mind."

"A bargain's a bargain. It won't need to," said Kent coolly. "By that time, if I have any understanding of Mr. Alexander Blair, he will have put your Lady of Mystery on the morning train which leaves for Boston by one of the other roads. If not why, you may take your chance."

"Tricked!" said Sedgwick. "Well, I owe you too much to go back on my agreement. But—see here, Kent. She's going to Boston. You're going to Boston. You can easily find out where the Blairs live. Go to her for 'Heaven forbid!' cried Kent piously.

"Why?"

"Then I shall have to follow, and look her up myself," returned his friend. "I'll wire you before I come. By the way," said Kent, leaning out from the car step upon which he had swung himself, "don't be disturbed if you miss that drawing which we bought from Elder Dennett, at a bargain."

"Miss it? Why, where is it?"

"In my suit case."

"What is it doing there?"

"Why, you see, it's a sketch for a finished portrait by Elliott, as I suspect, some of the art people in Boston might recognize it. Good luck! I hope not to see you soon; too soon, that is!"

Chance and a deranged railway schedule conspired against the peace of mind of the shy and shrieking Kent. Outside of Boston a few miles is Junction and a crossing. Here Kent's train was held up by some minor accident. Here, too, the train from the north on the other road stopped for orders. Thus it was that Kent, stepping out to take the air, found himself looking into an open Pullman window, at a woman's face framed in deepest black; a young face, but saddened and weary, whose unforgettable appeal of wistfulness had looked out upon him from the canvas in Sedgwick's studio.

"Mrs. Blair!"

For once in his life, Chester Kent's controlled tongue had broken the leash. Immediately he would have given a considerable sum of money to recall his impulsive exclamation. He was in an agony of shyness. But it was too late. The girl's face turned. The composed eyes scanned a serious-looking man of indeterminate age, clad in the cool elegance of light gray, and obviously harassed by some catastrophic embarrassment.

"I beg pardon," stammered the man. "Are you Mr. Blair? I'm Mrs. Kent."

At this astonishing announcement, amusement gleamed in the woman's eyes, and gave a delicate up-twist to the corner of her soft mouth.

"I don't recognize you in your present attire, Mrs. Kent," she murmured.

"Of course not. I—I meant to say—that is you know—Kent gathered his forces, resolved desperately to see it through, now. "I'm M-Mrs. Blair and I suppose you're Mr. Kent."

The soft music of her laughter made Kent savage. "Damn!" he muttered beneath his breath, and then went direct to the point. "There are things I want to speak to you about. I wish to get on your ear."

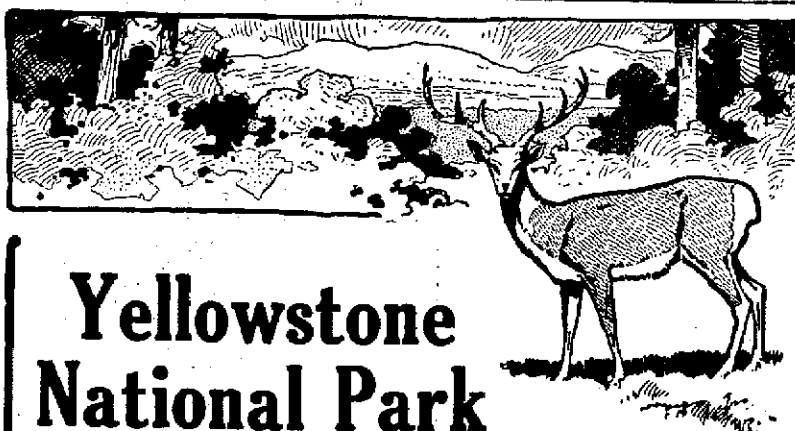

"Certainly not," replied she decisively. "I do not know you."

"I am a friend of Francis Sedgwick's."

The warm blood flushed her cheeks rose-color, and died away. Her lips quivered. So much of mute helplessness misery did her face show, that Kent's embarrassment vanished.

"Try to believe me," he said earnestly. "When I tell you that I wish only to save both of you from misunderstanding and suffering. Needless understanding and suffering," he added.

Dinner Stories

For four entire hours had the lady remained in the shop. She had visited every department and worried the majority of the salesmen without spending a penny.

Toward the close of the afternoon one of the salesmen, feeling somewhat exasperated, ventured to make a mild protest. "Madam," he asked sweetly, "are you shopping here?" The lady looked surprised, but not by any means annoyed.

"Certainly," she replied. "But what else should I be doing?" For a moment the salesman hesitated, then blurted out: "Well, madam, I thought perhaps you might be taking an inventory."

Then the lady melted away among the shadows by the door. A Kentucky colonel of the old school had made a proud boast that he hadn't drunk a glass of water in twenty years. One day as he was riding to Nashville on the old Louisville & Nashville the train was wrecked while crossing a bridge and plunged into the river. They pulled the colonel out with a boat-hook, and when they got him on shore one of his friends rushed up, crying: "Colonel! Are you hurt?" "No," he retorted. "Never swallowed a drop!"

Pleasant for Mamma. "And what did my little darling do in school today?" a mother asked of her youngest son—a second grader. "We had nature study, and it was my turn to bring a specimen," said the boy. "That was nice. What did you do?" "I brought a cockroach in a bottle and I told teacher we had lots more and if she wanted I would bring one every day."

A Good Fly Chaser.

Make it yourself. Buy a gallon of Cresoda, reduce it, we give you full directions, cost about 50c per gallon. Knocks them off dead. Clean to use. No grease or gum. Have sold it for years. We guarantee it to be the best you can use or bring it back and get your money. Don't pay three times the money for a fancy can filled with Tar and cheap Machine Oil. Badger Drug Co., cor. Milwaukee & River Sts.

Where To Go in Summer

This question it would seem could be easily solved from the vast amount of attractive literature intended to appeal to the summer vacationist and traveler at the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU.

Summer Literature at Gazette Travel Bureau

Vacation Land.—Handsome piece of literature featuring the lakes of Wisconsin and Minnesota with beautiful illustrations.

The Star Lake Country, Wisconsin.—People planning to visit some northern lake will find this map useful.

Summer Homes.—This booklet describes the various summer resorts in this state and adjoining states with information regarding hotel rates, transportation facilities, etc.

A Week's Cruise, $40.00.—A folder describing the lake trip from Chicago to Niagara Falls through Lakes Michigan, Huron, St. Clair and Erie, conducted by the above figure will be interesting to many people favoring a lake trip.

There is a good supply of the literature mentioned above, which has been sent to the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU for distribution.

The Bureau supplies free information about routes and rates to any point and is a subscriber to official railway guide.

A great advertising medium—Gazette Want Ads.
